Thanks to

I would like to say thanks to Tino Traver for his great help which he gives me from his position institutional relations of Villarreal CF, he bring me the opportunity of an interview with him, and I get a lot of information needed for my final project degree, and during the process of this one he was helping me.
The election of the work to realise has been encouraged from the point of view of my academic worries, and workwise in the world that I move and I would like to work in.

It is for this reason that in terms of learning we believe that it is interesting to know how an entity is related to its environment, and manages these relations to maximize its future benefits, and workwise I devote myself to the world of the football, I am a national football trainer, and the election of studying the Villarreal CF and particularly the platform "Endavant Villarreal", it is given by my environment, since my profession allows me to have access to information and I consider myself a well-known entity of this world.

On the other hand we tend to think that football is highly profitable, and knowing how clubs function, and their capacity as a social catalyst, we believe that it is relevant and at the same time suitable as a subject matter.

In this same piece of work we can observe a beginning where we describe the evolution of football and how it has evolved into such a social phenomenon. We will then proceed to discuss football's economic and social context and its impact on different european leagues, we will also reference academic terms with the specific case study, and lastly we will study in depth Villarreal CF, and its platform "Endavant Villarreal"

FROM THE ORIGINS OF FOOTBALL TO HIS ACTUAL IMPACTS
THE EVOLUTION OF
FOOTBALL AND ITS ACTUAL IMPACT
1.1 The origins of football

EVOLUTION OF FOOTBALL AND ITS ACTUAL DIMENSION

"To what extent is football similar to God? The devotion that many believers have and the distrust created by many intellectuals." This statement was said by the uruguayan reporter Eduardo Galeano. It resumes the dimension of football, which is a phenomenon like no other: there is no place in the planet where a ball or sphere-like object has not lead to a football match.

When football was born, as we are going to see, it was seen as a sport for rude and analphabet people, which later was considered as a valve to undergo everyday problems, and we still do not know the reason for which it captivates so many people.

Football is much more than a sport, in many occasions it is an opportunity for developing countries to get to be known and earn some respect world-wide, this way, a small, isolated town can multiply its influence in society through football.

We can therefore state that football is a social, political, economic, cultural and educative phenomenon, due to the fact that this sport enhances moral values, such as teamwork, sportsmanship, solidarity and generosity.

Football's process of creation was a long process, which involved and mixed many different cultures, creating a final product which is a lot like the sport we actually know as football. We can say that football's origin began in China, more than 2,000 years ago; followed by Japan 500 years later, where Kemari was practiced; in Greece, Episkyros was also a similar sport to contemporary football.

Even though the origins of similar sports to football were far away from Northern Europe, the country that managed to unify and spread the rules of football was the United Kingdom.

Although the beginnings of similar sports, they do not place to the soccer in this place, the country that it managed to announce and unify under the same rules was the United Kingdom.
Nevertheless, to speak about the history of football is to speak about the United Kingdom, since from the seventh century, in the British Isles a game that was practised in multiple forms began to bloom, until it adopted its contemporary rules and was perfected at the end of the nineteenth century. This sport became to be known as football.

1.1.1 The United Kingdom as a catalyst

The most relevant and important people in the United Kingdom, did not support football, as they believed that it was a minor sport, and was not worthwhile the time, a situation that now would not be conceivable since football is one of the phenomenons with major world effect, to come from this initial point to the current point, exists a process that I believe is necessary to revise, to understand what was meant by football in the beginning and how it has overcome all the difficulties that it has found to its step.

It is known as a fact that in the fourteenth century certain prohibitions existed to the practice of football, according to many historical sources, in the year 1314 the mayor of London was forced to deprive of authority the practice inside the city and punished all who played the sport to go to jail. Years later, in 1365, Edward III published a few rules which prohibited “to play skittles, football and other stupid games that are useless”. Years passed by and the image of football was not improving: in 1531, Sir Thomas Elyot published a book in which he recommended people to abolish the practice of football due to its brutal fury, which should be silenced. The Anglican church did not agree with the practice of football either and did not want this sport to continue.

Despite all the difficulties faced by people wanting to practice this sport, football was capable of "addicting" those who enjoyed the sport and started looking for other places as cloisters, where they could keep on practising their passion. These measures were very harsh and were managing at some points to decrease the practice of football. However, they did not have enough power to abolish this sport, when at the beginnings of the nineteenth century, when football reached a status where citizens began playing football in public schools and reached a major role during their recesses. Football began gaining recognition and stopped being a leisure activity, due to the fact that everyone started to recognize its educational values, since, it distanced children and students from drinking and other irresponsible activities.
Football was looked as a way to encourage teamwork, sacrificing for a common output. In every school there were a number of rules, but the desire of all the schools was to practice the sport between them, giving a new effort to unify the existing rules, arising the called Rules of Cambridge.

The definitive propulsion to the creation of common rules were the attainment of matches in London in 1863, when twelve representatives of clubs and schools meet in Freemanson's Tavern of Great Queen Street, and as a result, definitive rules were adopted that same year.

1.1.2 Evolution of football until today

Eight years later, in 1871, the first formal league was organised: The football Association Cup (the current British Cup).

Years later the rules were synthesized, to give the sport legal position. The figure of the goalkeeper was born; in 1872 the figure of the referee appeared; in 1873 the corner kick arose; in 1877 the current duration of the parties was established. Once the practice of football was formalized and all teams were playing under the same rules it began spreading rapidly. This globalization happened due to the economic expansion of the English empire, english travellers never missed a ball inside their suitcases. In this epoch the intellectuals stopped criticizing the practice of the sport for being "rough", it was underestimated by its use, since it was seen as the opium of the people, detested by academics both in America and in Europe.

1.2 Football as a social phenomenon

A phrase that identifies the force that football has in the current world (given by an Argentine journalist) is the following: “The world is round because God is a football fan”, this comes to symbolize what football represents in modern society. To the margin of phrases that exaggerate what football symbolizes, it is undoubtedly, the most popular sport, due to a series of fundamental characteristics, as for example: football is a very economic sport of practising, in any moment and place it is possible to organize a football match, without needing a surface in particular, either 22 players, or regulatory space, in the same park several matches are played simultaneously, this way its simplicity, the unpredictability of not knowing who wins, or the need to be a group of the people to be able to practise it give this magic that football has and is capable of dragging millions of people.

In addition, football is essential for our everyday life, during football matches all the fans are coaches, players and managers, we think we would all do it better and also that the one sat next to us does not know as much as us about football, all this generates an argued pre, and post match that nourishes our lives. We can say that football generates illusions. It serves as a tension plunger, evading your problems, and your illnesses, as writer Javier Marias indicates: “Football consists of this world without worries in which at least during 90 minutes everything is secondary."

The consumption of football never becomes exhausted, from August until May there are competitions, (leagues, cups, tournaments between clubs of different countries, Europe League, Champions League, and Libertadores cup, in addition to other minor competitions), to all of this it is necessary to add that during the summer World cups, Euro, and Olympic Games, and otherwise, the fans keep themselves entertained with the transfer window. All this evolution forces sociology to incorporate football in its studies, since currently it is more than a game, it is an entire social event, since analyzing the whole environment of football reliable conclusions can be made about contemporary society, adding to the principles of our world.

We can observe 2 places where for a series of reasons football is lived in a special way, this happens both in South America and in Europe.

1.2.1 South America the “cradle” of football

In South America football is a form of life, if in the rest of the world football is a passion, the specific case of South America goes further away, in countries such as Brazil, Argentina or Uruguay, football is more than a game, more than a business, there are countries where many people live in precarious conditions, and football can become a leakage valve for the families, since they live dependent on the evolution of football, with the hope of that some European club pays a generous quantity for any relative, to solve their own precarious situation.

Children learn to play sometimes barefooted and with the dream of pulling up their families with their footwork. Also when one of these countries organizes a soccer event, a World cup or Cup of America, the country is paralyzed, people working ask for special permissions to be able to watch some of the matches, this makes work absenteeism rise.

1.2.2 Europe and its passion

In Europe, it is possible to affirm that football is a better taken passion. We can find the best example in the United Kingdom where, match after match, independently on who they are playing against, stadiums fill up, and fans vibrate with their teams, also the mass media have a business built on the pre-matches and post-matches, with specialised sports programs. In Spain something similar happens, for example four out of the ten most read newspapers are sport-natured journals, where football usually occupies a major part of the news. These four newspapers mentioned earlier on are: “AS, Marca, Sport and Mundo Deportivo”, also eight out of the ten most watched programs are sports news or football matches, in certain TV channels (such as “Cuatro” and “la Sexta”) we can say that the sports space occupies almost more space than the informative one in itself.

In the old continent we also observe certain facts that reveal football's social impact: some tragic events as the death of George Best or the spanish Antonio Puerta and Dani Jarque. In Best’s case, its burial turned into viral topic, it was transmitted directly by the famous television channel BBC, and there was an inflow of half a million persons, so the bank Ulster decided to print notes with Best’s face a year after his death. These notes scarcely lasted one week. We can observe some similar episodes in our country, in Spain, the death of Antonio Puerta managed to join two teams that do not get on specially well with each other, Betis fans and Seville fans. They both wept for the tragic death of the player of the Seville, also the presidents of both clubs melted in an emotive hug, it was the hug between two fans after such a frightening fact.

1.3 Football as a political phenomenon

Politics is one of the phenomena which gives society major concerns, in addition cities depend on decisions that politicians take. Football has kept through history a narrow relationship with the world of politics; it has been used by dictators, has been named as a social drug, the "opium" of the people, also it has served like a catalyst element to encourage people in the world of football on to the world of politics.

Football gives unique popularity very difficult to obtain in other ways. This has been used by some people to strive after the world of the politics. This is the case, for example, of Silvio Berlusconi, who created an empire in Milan, managing to obtain good results both in Italy and in Europe, and obtaining a reputation as a good agent and noble man, this helped him to project the image that he desired upon himself, starting in politics and in his first elections was elected prime minister, position he shares with the presidency of AC Milan. In Argentina we find a similar case to Silvio's: Mauricio Macri, which was the president of Boca Juniors in 1995, and after a decade of achievements and success, presented his candidacy to being the mayor of Buenos Aires; at first he did not achieve the target, but he worked out for the following one and was chose as a mayor for this city.

1.4 Football as a cultural phenomenon

We have mentioned previously that thinkers and artists started being opposed to football for the image that was being projected of the sport, of being for crude and rough people, being seen as a stone in the way of the long-awaited creativity, but this concept of football has evolved, and, these last few decades there has been numerous arts that have been related to football, such as movies, literature, painting or music. Literature and music have been the most emphasized genres in this relation between soccer and culture. A big number of European and American authors have written or composed based on football, starting with the people who compose the canticles for football teams, up to authentic personalities in the Literary field (Mario Vargas Llosa or Gabriel García Márquez) or the music field (Serrat, Plácido Domingo, Sabina).
1.5 Football as a social, solidarity and education phenomenon

In the modern epoch, we have associated in many occasions football with solidarity, doing joint activities with the target to carry out activities for the sake of the neediest, and this has been like that because the sport with more pull and with major capacity of call of masses is football. There are numerous the actions that year after year are carried out in benefits of multiple causes like the struggle for peace, the struggle against racism (UEFA is one of the most afraid entities about this so they tend to intensify actions against this so that the football is an example for society), against drugs, poverty (usually play in significant dates like for example Christmas) also many of these associations are managed by clubs or players so that they have the necessary means to organize suitable actions.

On the other hand, for the dimension of football as an educational tool we can extract a few words of the Getafe ex player, Fabio Celestini who said¹ “Football is not only chasing a ball, it means much more”. What player means is that this sport multiplies the gives importance to the values of participation, teamwork, respecting teammates, rivals, referees, facilities and everything which surrounds this sport, effort, commitment, these are some of the most frequent principles that they are employed at most football schools, all this helps to form better people. Another distinguished player, Jorge Valdano said that: “football teaches from practice and that's why it turns out to be so pedagogic. It has the ability to teach without the beneficiary realizing it. You learn while you play”. The presence of football in the academic ambience is every time major and in Spain postgraduate courses specializing in sports management surpass already the hundred.

¹The content of these statements was published in the newspaper AS in 2008
CHAPTER 2

ENVIRONMENT OF FOOTBALL AND RELEVANT FACTORS
2.1 Regulation by which clubs are lead

In this chapter\(^2\) we are going to try to aim at a series of aspects that result from big relevancy at the time of understanding how the football business works in our country. We will begin the chapter mentioning briefly the legislation by which clubs are lead by in Spain.

Regulation by which spanish clubs are lead in Spain (Act 10/9, 15th of October, 1990)

The Spanish Constitution, in its article 43. 3 points out that “the public powers will encourage health education, physical education and sport. Also, they will facilitate the suitable use of free time”. In this sense, public powers have approved a series of legal and regulatory dispositions that draw the juridical frame in which football clubs are unrolled in our country, being the Law 10/1990 of Sport, of October 15th, 1990 the main point of legal reference to the study of football clubs. One of the main aftereffects of the above mentioned law is the demand of transformation of the professional clubs into SAD, which materializes in the Royal decree 1251/1999 of July 16 on SAD, and another series of norms of the same legal status, of which only some articles or dispositions remain current at present. Also, to tackle the finished form of the analysis of the regulation, the adaptation of the PGC will be mentioned briefly to the SAD, which tries to adapt the countable norm to the requirements and needs for the sports clubs.

Note: “SAD” stands for “Sociedad Anónima Deportiva” (public limited sports company).

The fundamental target of this law, approved in 1990 and that has suffered some modifications with posteriority (the last one 11-07-2013) is to regulate the juridical frame in which the practice of the sport must be unrolled in the Spanish state, for what it differentiates two ambiences of the sports activity: that one that the citizens play like spontaneous and “chill” activities and the sports spectacle turned into a phenomenon of masses that is becoming more and more professional. In the sport practised by fans, the legislator claims to encourage the sports association, and with this object they must legislate the elementary sports clubs, which have a form of simplified constitution, while for the professional activities there is established a model of juridical and economic responsibility by means of the conversion of the clubs into SADs.

The law contemplates also a few associative forms of the second grade, which are the sports federations, and an organ in charge of the administrative performance of the State in the sports ambience, which is the Higher Council of Sports. Also, there is indicated the procedure that must continue a club to take part in official competitions: first of all, to register in the record of sports associations and in the federation of the corresponding sport, and later to adopt the juridical form of SAD, although there is contemplated the possibility that the clubs taking part in professional competitions of football with positive hereditary balance preserve its juridical structure, as it is the case of Real Madrid, Barcelona, Athletic de Bilbao and Osasuna, which still have not formalized this conversion. With this measurement what the legislator was claiming was not another thing than to regularize the economic situation of the clubs, so that if a club does not obtain economic results that make it viable, its shareholders have to help to maintain route with increases in capital or dissolve the society. This was an aspiration that was coming from the background, so since the television entered game, the have produced in football an inflationary process that had provoked an exponential growth in the expenses of teams, what it took most clubs into a chaotic situation, which was saved only from the hand of extraordinary results, generated generally across a player's' sale, or increasing the indebtedness, which gave place to a strong growth of the debits for balance and the financial expenses of the clubs.

This situation, which was affecting the whole of Europe, was tried to fight against in Spain for the first time in the year 1985, when a plan of sanitation was approved which targeted to re-establish the hereditary situation of the clubs, but the defeat of this measurement and the ineffectiveness of the agents of clubs provoked that since 1988 certain steps were beginning to happen, especially on the part of the CSD, to approve a law that established certain responsibility mechanisms for the leaders of clubs, and that culminated with the approval of the Law that occupies us, which establishes the compulsory nature of the conversion of most of the clubs into corporations. They created in this law the called personal guarantees, which there had to cover 15 % of the budget of the club and, one year later, a new sanitation plan was established with a validity period until 2002, which did not turn out to be too successful either.
2.1.2 The image of SAD

Although we have already quoted them previously, due to the big importance that they have acquired in professional sport, it is convenient to deepen more in some of the legal aspects of SAD, which are going to be the fundamental juridical figures in the business of football.

Corporative aim: The SAD will take as a corporative aim the participation in sports competitions of professional character. This corporative aim demands the professionalization of sport, but does not exclude the promotion and development of sports activities, that is to say, them popularly known like youth clubs.

Economic exercise: The economic exercise of the SAD will be fixed in accordance with the calendar established by the corresponding professional league, it being established that, unless another thing is indicated, will close the exercise on June 30 every year.

Share capital: A fundamental aspect for the SAD is the fixation of the minimal share capital, which will never be able to be lower than the established one by the Law of Corporations. The Royal decree defines the minimal capital for a SAD, there being established its calculation as sum of the following addends:

- First: 25 % of the average of the expenses, including the amortizations, for the clubs and SAD (excluded of major and minor expense) that take part in the competition

- Second: determined according to the negative clear hereditary balances that, in its case, there presents the balance of the last natural trimester. Nevertheless, if the first one of these addends was lower than the second one, the minimal capital is fixed as the double of the hereditary negative balances.

This fixation of the minimal share capital is carried out by an organ like the Joint committee, which will be integrated by two people designated by the CSD and the League.

Corresponding professional, who will have to notify its decision in the course of three months, understanding itself in the opposite case that the minimal capital will be:

- If the clear hereditary balance of the club was negative, the sum of the clear hereditary balance and 25 % of the average expenses of the clubs and SAD that take part in the competition
- If the hereditary balance was positive, the minimal capital will be of 60,000 more euros than the said percentage of expenses since the hereditary balance is a fundamental element to determine the minimal share capital of the SAD; it becomes necessary to indicate how it is necessary to carry out the calculation of this balance, which is obtained of the following way: Proper Funds + capital Subsidies (sports clubs and others) + positive change Differences + fiscal Income to distribute in several exercises + Loans of participation with expiration date superior to 5 years.

- In addition to all this, the Law of Sport establishes that the shares of a SAD must be nominative, the share capital must be paid out entirely and with capital contributions and that all these criteria will be applied also to those clubs that gain access to an official competition being already SAD. Initially it was foreseen that only shareholders of the SAD were natural people with Spanish nationality, the public legal people, savings banks and similar entities and Spanish legal people or societies whose foreign participation was not superior to 25 % and whose members were completely identified.

Nevertheless, the increasing social demand and the evolution of other models of our environment, provoked the Law of the Sport to eliminate the mention to the nationality of the shareholder, although it did not achieve it was stopping a big emphasis in the significant shares in the SAD, settling that when 5 % is possessed or any more than one SAD people cannot already have a direct or indirect participation in another SAD of the same official competition and that to acquire 25 % or more of participation needs authorization of the CSD.

Dividends share-out: The Law of Sport, in its original writing, established that a SAD could not distribute dividends until there was not a constitute legal reservation equal or bigger than half of the average of the expenses in the last three seasons, but the modification of the law eliminated this restriction.
2.1.3 Countable rules and periodic information

The chaotic economic situation that led to the Plans of Sanitation and to the configuration of football clubs as SAD, forced us to see also the need for a major control on the finance of the clubs, what it led to the detailed regulation of the information to preparing, the way of doing it and the information to be presented before the different organisms. There was established the obligation to send to the CSD and to the corresponding Professional League the audit reports that they accompany to the annual accounts and the management report before depositing them in the mercantile Record, as well as the obligation to present before the CSD a half-yearly information that it would include, like minimum, a few intermediate financial conditions and also the obligation to present before than the CSD the annual accounts before being presented in the General shareholders Meeting. Finally, the Order of Department of Economy on June the 27th, 2000 on the sectoral adaptation of the General Plan of Accounting to the SAD was specifying the of the countable information, establishing the compulsory nature to all the SAD and professional sports clubs that have not adopted this juridical way of following this norm, which endures some substantial differences with regard to the PGC.

2.1.4 The Professional football league and UEFA

As we indicated previously, the Law of the Sport foresees, in addition to the clubs, the existence of other intermediate figures, which are the federations and which target is the management of footballistic interests. Nevertheless, professional leagues must also be created, which must target controlling, looking over the discipline of its affiliates, as well as trying to promote and exploit commercially its competitions. The LFP is the manager of exigibles and approves the economic requisites to the SAD and clubs to integrate into the league, between that they stand out:

- To pay the quota of inscription demanded by the League—;
- to justify that it knows about fiscal obligations and commitments with the public healthcare insurance.
- Not to have unpaid debts to players and technical staff
- To present an explicit memory of the economic resources of the SAD or club and the relation of its Directorate or Council of Administration
- To enclose a copy of the labor contracts

- To send the shareholders' list of the SAD

- To present the guarantees demanded by the Law of a Similar Sport is also the function of the UEFA at continental level, which tells with a series of responsibilities at European level similar to those of the League in our country, standing out:

- To treat all the questions regarding European football

- To promote football in Europe in a spirit of peace and fair play

- To safeguard the interests of its members

- To organize the competitions and international meetings inside Europe is in charge of carrying out also strong measurements of financial control, which are acquiring special importance in the last years immediately after the initiative of Financial Fair Play that appeared to remain implanted in this year 2014, and that they try to improve the economic and financial capacity of the clubs.

At the time of evaluating the financial conditions there arises the problem of the heterogeneity of the countable systems, but to fight what is done it is to put a series of requisites in order to receive the license UEFA, which are: or to have enough resources and credit possibilities or to be able to prove a prediction of positive net assets at the end of period or credit a solid financial structure.

FINANCING AND INDEBTEDNESS

IN THE FOOTBALL CLUBS
In this chapter and as soon as there was analyzed the dimension of this sport, like the regulation that governs it, we can analyze the financial situation of Spanish football, to complete this way better the piece of work. Also we are going to realize comparisons with other European leagues, with the target to deal with what situation football finds itself in Spain and to see if we have to worry regarding to what is happening in other countries. As introduction to the topic we are going to see a series of details on how clubs of our country are financed and which their main inputs are.

3.1 ¿How are clubs fundraised?

First illustration: different sources of funding

- Share capital
- A self-financing
- Bank
- Credit companies

Source: Hand made

3.1.1 Resources

The main financing sources at the disposal of the clubs are the following ones:

- Share capital; it consists of selling a "part" of the company to the people that look for an economic yield, or to have a feeling for the club and of this form participants of the process feel.

- A self-financing resource that the company generates and does not distribute and therefore they are available for the use that they create suitably.

- Bank financing or of credit companies we give others, that are proceeding from shareholders or societies that it have character almost of capital as its limited liability.

These are the main ways of financing these types of societies, but there are new forms of financing as for example the investment funds that at present are used to finance in common the signings of the clubs.

On the other hand, in British football clubs have always been historically small enterprises that were a property of small enterprises or fans, Spanish teams were born with associative character, and it was not until the end of the XXth century with the law of the Sport when they transformed in companies.

3.1.2 Clubs indebtedness

- Indebtedness Long term; The clubs have come to the bag to face major investments in infrastructure, both Real Madrid and Atletico Madrid attended the issuance of bonds for the construction of their respective stadiums. However in recent times clubs have preferred other forms of financing, such as bank debt.

Bank financing has borne the brunt of financing clubs, being common for entities to present a debt situation.

3.2 Finance sources for clubs

Above we discussed the ways of financing, now we will study how clubs can deposit money to consolidate their accounts and share profits among its stakeholders.

One of the hot spots, and where more controversy between Spanish clubs is happening, is the equal sharing because broadcasters argue that it can not be fair because they do not have the same media impact the first classified in the Spanish league as the last one, also it is important to have revenues from the sale of players and linked to European competitions have a plus by punctuated party, and the last round.
3.2.1 Assistance to stadium can be a source of finance

That they continue to be important but have lost relative importance compared to other forms of funding, but clubs do not lose sight. These revenues come mainly in two ways: individual box office income for each match, and the annual subscription to the club. Clubs increasing revenue before starting the season, aim to increase the number of subscribers, thereby reducing uncertainty match to match know how many fans will go to watch the team play, but do not neglect to leave a percentage of the tickets for sale, this rotation helps to increase the number of fans of a club.

3.2.2 TV as a source of finance

This is an important point in the essay, now we present a brief introductory summary mode, specify later in television revenue as they charge special relevance in the work studied.

Revenues from broadcasting on television, took their explosion in the late 90s with the expansion of television channels. Today television revenues are the basis of their income and are a source of countless conflicts between clubs.

3.2.3 Marketing as a source of income

Identification follower made the club is high and this must be taken advantage of by the club, brands can get a strong feeling of belonging, and they are less vulnerable to competition, sometimes causing inestimable substantial changes in product prices.

Today clubs work as trademarks and marketing has taken more prominence, in things like international tours, the sale of promotional items, exploitation of the name of stadiums by companies, the exploitation of technological means.
3.2.4 Finance from public institutions

In our country another main source of income is public support, unlike other countries like England where there is hardly any aid.

Public administrations collaborate significantly, because the direct subsidy must help savings for using public facilities free to promote football in a city, and in many cases public institutions are responsible for maintaining and upgrading football stadiums.

3.2.5 Selling players as a source of income

The last source of revenue is income from the sales of players, it is very important in the profit and loss account as it collects generated goodwill between the selling price and the net book value. Many of the clubs are able to consolidate their accounts because of this kind of games, so sometimes clubs are forced to sell their stars to not disappear.

CURRENT SITUATION OF FOOTBALL IN EUROPE AND SPAIN
4.1 Finance involving important European leagues

Football is a sport which allows the movement of money throughout the whole planet, but it is in Europe where the largest amount of football culture is packed together and concentrated as the vast majority of developed countries can be found within Europe. The two main factors: rich countries and football culture, allow the sport and its business to reach its maximum income.

To be able to understand fully how this business works, it is fundamental to analyse a series of accountable reports which allow us to really know which is the economic situation of the sport at a continental level. As reference we are going to choose 5 big European leagues, which we think represent better the model of European business (The Spanish league BBVA, to German Bundesliga, Italian A Series, English Premier League and French Ligue 1).

The invoice of these large leagues is growing exponentially, due to the clubs's and leagues's continuous innovation and especially due to the increase of the income from television and its increase when broadcasting events. These large leagues receive an income of about 50% of the whole European football associations and businesses with numbers higher than 9,340 million euros. On a global scale it is clearly seen that the constant invoice is of about 19,500 million euros. We can also see that as each year passes by its income increases as it is a sector where people invest a lot of money due to its distance from reality. This sport also generates and creates large amounts of jobs directly and indirectly.

In the following graph we can observe the exploitation revenues, the total sales carried out by the company during the period covered by the state of the results.

Second illustration: Comparison of income between leagues

4.1.1 Statistical conclusions

Observing this information\(^4\) we can comment on relevant information for our work, we see that all the leagues have a positive level of growth and year by year their income increase. The English league is the league that produces the highest income compared to other European leagues, it is a league that is weaker than for example the Spanish one in terms of football.

The German league is in second position in terms of its income volume. This is a curious fact as it has at its disposal 18 teams, 2 less than the rest, as well as having a large number of teams which aren’t very well known outside of Germany and its German public. Their advantage is that they have a strong entrepreneurial culture based on strict prices in a country which seems to be the least affected by the actual crisis.

As for the Spanish league, there are two giants who monopolize a huge percentage of this income. These teams are Real Madrid and Barcelona. Talking about the French, the irruption of the sheikh Al-Thani in the PSG has sky-rocketed the income produced and in the next years it will reach the same level as the rest of the leagues.

\(^4\)The information point is extracted from the Report on the situation of the Spanish European 2011-2012, José María Gay de Liebana football.
The financial results aren't as negative as could be expected and do not help improving the development deficit which is the only way of regulating the situation is by means of extraordinary income (be it as a sale of players or assets).

4.2 Comparative of television rights in Europe

The television rights are a critical point in the income of a club.

Since we have already mentioned previously, the underlying income to the television rights have become pretty important since the end of the 90s when the appearance of new channels of television sky-rocketed the competition, in such a way that nowadays television contracts reach multi millionaire numbers.

Nowadays the income originated from television is part of one of the main sources of income. After clubs complain as they argue that at present an equitable share-out does not exist between clubs.

For all of this they present themselves as a fundamental point when analysing the economic - financial environment of football in Europe and in our country. We are going to describe how this negotiation is carried out inside our borders, since Spain is precisely one of the countries in which the share-out of these rights is much more unequal, and where Real Madrid and Barcelona distribute, as we will see now, almost half of the share-out, leaving another half to distribute between eighteen teams. This way many economic differences are generated which explain many of the sports differences that are then observed on the field.

The Spanish League or League BBVA is the third league that collects more income for this concept. This league is surpassed both by the English Premier League and by the Italian Series A, but also it is the league where the share-out is less equitable.

In England, the top two teams in the standings in the previous year, which are Manchester United and Manchester City, only receive 15% of total revenue, while in Spain Real Madrid and Barcelona account for almost 50% of television revenues.

The other two major league we have included in this analysis, which are the French Ligue 1 and Serie A, leaving aside Bundesliga, resemble more the cast of the Premier, so that the two teams that receive more take between 14 and 18% and the last ten between 33 and 46%, while in Spain the ten least successful in the distribution of television revenues equipment only carried 20.9% of the total, i.e., between Real Madrid and Barcelona share more than twice as much money than among the last ten teams in the table.

The differences are so huge that Madrid and Barcelona were in this exercise 118 more than Valencia million, which was the third in this particular classification, while English Manchester City receives only four million more than Arsenal or Marseille more than ten million Lyon.

It is less clear whether this is sustainable, because we have seen a few years ago in the Scottish League how many teams threatened to leave the competition if a redistribution of that money is not produced achieving a greater share of income and maybe something similar happen in Spain if we do not solve this problem, which could be the joint negotiation of rights, as is done in other leagues, but you need the authorization of the big clubs, something that apparently never happen
4.2.1 Rights of television in Spain

As we can see in the chart the differences between Real Madrid and Barcelona are very large compared to other teams, we can see that the television networks are reaching agreements to reduce these differences we observe in the right column where except Valencia, all clubs receive more money for their TV rights.

I think that football generates a very large amount of revenue, and we think that should regulate the flow of income and expenses, make a model more suited to the times with monetary restrictions, salary limits for business team and so there would be so many differences between clubs and thus it could better distribute television revenue.

SECOND PART:
THEORETICAL-PRACTICAL CASE ANALYSIS
CHAPTER 5

ACADEMIC TERMS
At this point⁶, I will discuss different concepts related to the business world, thanks to its definition and its application to the work itself, will facilitate the understanding of it.

5.1 Concept of the mission and analysis of it

First, I will discuss the concept of the "mission" of the company, this concept answers the following question: What is the essence of our business, and that way do we want to take next?

So the mission is represented through the identity and personality of the company, pick up the raison d'être of the company, justifying its existence, it is and will be the basis of the company.

Each company will have a different "mission" and not being in the same sector, or act in the same market niche, the company's shared mission with its competitors. It is directly related to culture, sharing their values and beliefs. The mission is part of the company, it is conditioned by the corporate culture, but also the mission also influences the corporate culture, complement and enhance each other. To be able to implement this concept in the company, it is necessary that the company knows all its workers, regardless of their position in the hierarchy of the company, its functions, or whether its structure is more or less flat. The mission has a unifying role, and it is able to create a sense of belonging among workers, the company and the concept implementation will be optimal.

In this case, Villarreal through Endavant platform tries to do acts of social responsibility, since they believe that football is a business that generates profits and should revert to society.

In the project Endavant Villarreal, actions are used with the same "pattern" Villarreal Cf share, values and corporate culture.

This club is identified with the following values;

Respect through social activities with various entities later explained.

The desire to excel, being a humble club with a population that is competing with teams that have a much larger populations, and through the quarry to be a team that is always remediated committed young projection and usually they work out.

Ethics in their leadership as they always maintain the same proportion as allocated to the quarry, whether the year is the club allocates 10% of its budget to its quarry, Villarreal also characterized as a club sanitized.

At all levels is a fairly flat structure, currently through the new training plan implemented at the club, all coaches are part of the process and meetings are held weekly with different levels in the club to take into account the views of all.

In the case of Villarreal and specifically with the “Endavant” project, all people associate this word to the business culture of the club, always look forward, always will appear new challenges, and together we will create a more efficient structure.

5.2 Concept of the project and practical vision

Following the concepts studied, I'll talk about the concept of "Vision", mainly answer the following questions how should we be, what do we want to be in the future?

So the vision is understood as the mental image of the desired future path by the company, and always adapted to the ambitions of managers, who are generally taking the most important decisions of the company. This will essential to identify the differences between what we have in the present, and what we want in the future, paving the way we want to overcome the challenges we set ourselves as a company, for it is necessary that all members of the company know about this business vision.

For the challenge involving the whole business network, it is necessary to be a long term challenge formulated generally tend to be of a duration of ten year away, or even an indefinite period. It should be formulated so ambitious, that everyone has a sense of belonging, and get the commitment of all members of our company, it should be achievable because if it is an illusion and people unable to meet short-term challenges not believe in the new business vision.

Business insight will give meaning to all, will help understand strategic decisions, logistics, a change in the hierarchical organization.

In the case studied, we can see that Villarreal through Endavant project wants to implement a new business vision.

Due to the situation in the province of Castellon, it is a historical province in terms of football, and until the 70s did not have a clear benchmark, was the golden age of Castellón playing in the first division and get to play a final of the Copa del Rey, the time when Del Bosque and Planelles used to play.

This forced the province to become “albinegra”, and also had players from different places in the first team, fans engaged with their game, their structure, and corporate culture.

Thus growth Villarreal CF has been found with a stone in his way, and people who once joined the albinegro feeling is now reluctant to change their "colors". Therefore Villarreal's business vision is to expand its brand, get more supporters in the province by population as 55,000 inhabitants in Villarreal, compared to 150,000 Castellon, has created the brand Endavant to bring the feeling of the submarine to all people who wish to collaborate with Villarreal.

This feeling was because Villarreal is growing because in recent years have joined several factors that help this expansion Villarreal, on the one hand the decline of CD Castellón, the good work of Villarreal with your results, you can see football and first division games against European teams, through the Europa League and the Champions League, and the actions carried by Villarreal through Endavant province that are focused to gain more followers.

5.3 Concept of social responsibility

Another of the concepts studied during the degree, and I think it has a special interest in this project is the concept of "Social Responsibility", you should know that the principal target of any company will be to maximize the benefits of the shareholders present and future, the company meet its stakeholders will not have different obligations than legal.

This is where the picture enters the role of the concept of social responsibility, that is, to the extent that the activities of a company protect and improve society, assuming different practices of the minimum obligations (whether legal, economic, social or technical) they have with other stakeholders.

What means to have a corporate social responsibility?

Involves having other than to maximize profits functions, the assumption of social responsibilities, not only will help facilitate the resolution of social problems, but it will help give recognition to the company with the different stakeholders and society, because as companies can generally make action to help society, and often these decisions to help or not help will fall on business ethics have senior management of the company.

The Club through Endavant project, gives a vital importance to the social responsibility of the club, because as I mentioned earlier, always devotes 10% of its profits to the quarry, and as will comment on these sections the club through Endavant Solidaritat, it is dedicated to all joint proposal that receives and is feasible to perform for the club, put it into practice, plus all the equipment the club's youth is connected with associations in the province of Castellon and throughout the year they will maintain a relationship, doing joint activities, either in the sports city "Miralcamp" or on the premises of the association concerned.

The president of the Spanish League, Tevas commented:

"With Villarreal there is always a detail that draws attention. I can personally have differences of opinion with the president on some issues, but it is a team that has the values I want to have football. Both at the level of 'fair play' financial and a sporting level it has always been a club that has been identified with our idea."

5.4 Concept of business environment and practical application

The business environment can say that are factors external to the company that will define the context in which the company will develop its activity.

ENVIRONMENT factors external to the company: define the context in which the company operates have significant influence on corporate strategy The company can not control absolutely

The environment Endavant project is complex because it depends partly on sponsorships to carry out both clubs and athletes, clubs who want to work, so their turnover, the potential synergies that may arise with other associations people with other athletes are unpredictable and not known in the long run will happen.

The target audience is very marked, since in the same target area have another team first division with more history and greater support from fans as Valencia CF, and discussed above with CD Castellón, also if resurface from the ashes would return to take that brand awareness that craves through Endavant.

Fifth illustration: stable or turbulent environment

We will use the chart above to analyze the characteristics that define the case study environment so we can better understand the work done.

First Villarreal is in a dynamic environment, as their actions depend on your budget, and budget of his performance in Spanish and European competitions, can have a forecast of what to do with historical data, but are not conclusive, say that is in a dynamic environment.

Following variables in terms of the complexity football is in a complex environment, due to the amount of influences received, interests and wealth it generates around it, so we can say that it is in a complex environment, part of the variable of diversity, following the previous thread there is currently turnover associated with football are beyond the preparation of the template, so we will say that is in a diverse environment and is open to change.

At present times, Villarreal is in a favorable environment because there is no other team within a radius of 60 km in the maximum Spanish category.

To conclude with the environment of the 4 variables studied, stability, complexity and diversity make us think that Villarreal is operating in a turbulent environment, but the hostility variable tells us that the club works in a stable environment, because we have no data quantifiable among them we can not say with certainty that environment is operating the club today.

“ENDAVANT VILLARREAL”

Since 2004 sponsors clubs and athletes from the province to promote the progress of sport in Castellón. It also shows its solidarity to assist economic and social way with countless non governmental organizations (NGOs), institutions and associations side.

6.3."Endavant sports"

At this point, Villarreal continues its commitment to society, it is reinvesting its profits in aid agreements and sharing synergies with the different entities / individual athletes in their discipline not that much revenue is generated and to survive and / or improving need support of this caliber.

So englobaríamos everything related to the world of sport, other than professional football, are all aid does Villarreal both individual athletes and clubs, making available to them a number of tools and aids, for thanks to Villarreal get going "endavant" and achieve their individual goals and group both.

Currently it has sponsorship agreements with the following entities and individual athletes: Club Friends of Basketball, Futsal Club Peniscola FS RehabMedic, Athletics Club Playas de Castellon, Club Mediterranean Volleyball, Handball CD Castellón, L’illa Grau Volleyball Club Castello , Cd Roda, Futsal Moldeazul Auto-Real Villarreal CF. Pablo Torrijos, Pablo Herrera, Sebastian Mora, Sara Sorribes, Roberto Bautista Agut.

6.3.1 Teams

As we have seen throughout our work football has evolved in practice and impact, a sport that at its inception the high societies did not want to practice because it was considered a tough sport, has been gaining weight in society to become what it is today.

Now football is seen as a way of life, children grow up admiring their idols, imitating everything they do on and off the field, so we can say that it has become a social phenomenon, with incalculable and capable magnitudes of generating where wealth comes, recently data have come out to play in the first Spanish division generates an impact of 60 million euros a year in the city that gets the coveted promotion.

Villarreal through Endavant is conducting an unplayable social work, but we must set up measures to control the impact of their actions, and to set up budget items, to reach everything as club decides to intervene.

Last but not least important to note that the case studied versed about Villarreal CF, we have seen as a club that is an example of the other clubs in terms of social impact, because of all the actions taken.

We get the information of the chapter 6 from Villarreal CF webside.
Futsal Moldeazul Auto-Real Villarreal CF: This club adheres to the project in 2014, which also carry the official name of the submarine, add the shield of Villarreal CF to his shirt, and change to yellow dress. This collaboration is economic, social and sports, as has with other entities in the province.

The Football Club Auto-Real Moldeazul Villarreal CF, room was founded in Vil-LAREAL in 1987; his career began in the local league, and was ascending categories to settle in the First National, which is the current Third division. The company is currently responsible for managing the Municipal Sports School, and school leagues futsal, dealing with advocacy and dissemination of this sport, as well as conducting training courses for monitors and other campaigns in collaboration Servei d'Esports with the Ajuntament de Vil-LAREAL.

Involving more than 400 players, fitting in more than forty teams, with their respective monitors.

In this case the Villarreal has a social ethic with the people with this agreement helps a minority sport in his hometown, which also has a lot of strength in the village, with more than 400 players.

Roberto Bautista (Castellón de la Plana 1988) has an agreement that is limited exclusively to the sport plane, allowing the use of Benlloch sports and medical services installations Villarreal CF. Roberto's case is peculiar because it keeps a large personal bond with Villarreal, because he combined up to 12 years the submarine, with playing tennis, when in the junior category he decided to devote himself to tennis.

Currently it ranked 15 in the world ranking of the ATP. His best results have been the gold medal and bronze medal at the Mediterranean Games of Pescara (2009), the semi-finals of the Madrid Masters, fourth round of US Open, and third round of Wimbledon and Roland Garros, also this year has led to the Spanish team in the fight for promotion to the Davids Cup.
6.3.3 Actual changes in Endavant sports

A view of the ordinary citizen, the project "endavant esports" was like something unattainable because it includes athletes from Olympic level or clubs minority with some force in Castellón sports, then Villarreal this year has decided to extend its range to sports with less force in the province of Castellon, such as the Handball Castellón, and women's volleyball.

Continuing in the line of making "endavant esports", available to any athlete, or entity the club has decided to open a period of free registration, where any child registered in Castellón, you can ask to start this program, this period is closed on May 22, 2016.

The club which spends most of budget is the Playas de Castellon.

6.6 Endavant province

The main idea of this project is to create a feeling "yellow subamarine" in the province of Castellon; currently they are attached to this project 130 of the 135 towns in the province, being remarkable that the city of Castellon has not loved part of this initiative, neither the current government nor the previous one.

During the week of the game, a population is the protagonist, to create brand awareness that he wants Villarreal makes a series of actions:
First the people will have many entries as required for the party in question, plus transportation will never be a problem as the club enabled many buses as they are required, the club made a promotional video of the people concerned putting on the map world the people in question, have an average of 100,000 visits Villarreal channel on youtube.

Before the game in Llaurador- Square is located attached to campo.- The club provides a space to the people in question with the aim that promotes their products, or promotes what it deems appropriate.
